

1. What is the meditator's goal? What do they want to achieve?
2. Is Descartes a skeptic?
3. Is there a kind of skepticism that he is on board with?
4. To achieve certainty, everything _____ must be rejected.
5. What are the "foundations" that can be targeted to execute this rejection?
6. What's something easy to reject? How is it done?
7. What's something more difficult to reject? How is it done?
8. What's the point of the evil demon?
9. The meditator achieves certainty about the existence of _____.
10. After certainty about its existence, the meditator seeks certainty about its _____.
11. What is his old account of its _____? What is his new account?
12. Does the meditator achieve certainty about the complete _____ of _____?
13. The piece of beeswax is supposed to be an example of _____.
14. Under what methodological supposition does the meditator perceive the _____ of the wax? Is this real certainty?
15. This perception is not executed by the _____ or by the _____ but instead by the _____.
16. Why can't it be by the _____?
17. Why can't it be by the _____?
18. What comparison(s) can be made between the wax and the _____?

Student Name

Please write your name in the box:

--